

WIND WRECKS BIG BUILDING

Old Christian College At Hustonville
Practically Ruined By Wind-storm Wednesday Night

One of the most peculiar wind-storms ever known in this section of Kentucky practically demolished the old Christian College, now used as the graded and high school building at Hustonville, unroofed several other structures and did quite a lot of other damage there about 8 o'clock Wednesday night. The miniature cyclone then took a hop, skip and a jump and flattened out about 15 telephone poles along the Stanford and Crab Orchard pike, just south of Rowland, and about 12 miles east of the scene of its other antics. So far as can be learned, beyond blowing down a number of trees and tearing off limbs, no other damage of consequence was done by the small-sized tornado which raged through this section early that evening.

The old college building is practically a ruin. Luckily the force of the wind struck it on the west side. Supt. S. S. Robinson, of the Hustonville high and graded school, makes his home with his family, in rooms in the northern part of the building, and were uninjured when the west end went down and the roof were torn off. The walls of the other portion of the building, are warped so, it is said, that they will all have to be rebuilt before the building is habitable or safe for use again. There was $2,500 insurance carried on the building in the insurance agency of R. M. Newland, of Stanford, and Mr. Newland, states that settlement will be made promptly.

A portion of the big flour mill of the Hustonville Milling Company was unroofed by the heavy wind and telephone wires and poles went down in the wake of the storm, the damage being particularly severe out Hustonville street, going south from Hustonville. The wind cut several unusual capers, driving pieces of timber into the houses of F. M. Yowell and Mrs. Helen Huffman, until it looked like they had been stuck there like pins in a pin cushion.

The heavy wind ushered in one of the coldest spells of the present winter. The temperature during the past week has amply demonstrated the variety of weather which is always on tap in this section of Kentucky. No more delightful spring days can be imagined than were enjoyed here Monday and Tuesday. A hard rain Wednesday, with the wind-storm of that night, was followed by a drop in temperature to almost zero Friday morning, and a light covering of snow over the ground.

Thermometers are hovering around 10 above zero all day today.

MET HORRIBLE DEATH

News from Bryantville tells of the horrible death of Mrs. Sallie Welch there last week. Mrs. Welch had been in declining health and before retiring took from the bed a pillow and was standing before an open fire place warming it, preparatory to retiring, when the pillow and her clothing caught on fire and she was so horribly burned that she died shortly afterward. She was a splendid woman and had many friends in the community in which she lived. She was the mother of Mrs. Sam P. Deatherage of Richmond.

SOLD FINE BLOODHOUNDS

Marshall Herring, of Hustonville, sold one of his fine English bloodhounds this week to Gen. Roger D. Williams, of Lexington. Mr. Herring took the pup, which is a six-months-old bitch, over to Lexington and delivered her personally to the head of the Kentucky State Guard, who was greatly pleased $50 for her.

There will be regular preaching at the Hustonville Presbyterian church each first and third Sundays by Paul S. VanDyke of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

KILLED AT SCHOOL FOR DEAF

Miss Cynthia Sowders, 18 years of age, fell from the fourth story of the main building of the School for the Deaf at Danville late Tuesday night and was instantly killed. She was on the first floor and left for her room only a few minutes before her lifeless body was found. With other young women she had been playing and it is thought that she raised the window, and sitting down to cool, lost her balance. She was the daughter of Mrs. Rachel Sowders, of Knox county.

DAMAGE SUITS DEFEATED

The L. & N. Railroad won the damage suits against it in the Franklin circuit court brought by W. S. Scantland, Ida, Mary and Bryon Scantland in which each plaintiff asked damages of $2,500 for illness alleged to have been caused by staying in the station at Stanford, while awaiting the arrival of a train. They claimed the station was not heated and that they contracted colds. Several local people went to Frankfort as witnesses in these cases.

Break With Germany

Unrestricted Submarine Policy
Becomes Imminent As Result Of Her

Washington, Jan. 31.—Germany has declared unrestricted submarine warfare.

A starvation blockade of England, the like of which the world never has seen, was announced to the world today in notes delivered to American Ambassador Gerard in Berlin and to the State Department here by Count von Bernstorff.

Again the United States faces severance of diplomatic relations with Germany with all its eventual possibilities. President Wilson's repeated warnings of "a world a-fire" and Secretary Lansing's "verge of war" statement are being recalled in the capital tonight with feelings of apprehension and misgiving.

Germany's action is the super-crisis of all those that have stirred the American Government in two and a half years of world war.

Talk of peace and means of preserving the peace of the world has gone glimmering. President Wilson, incredulous at first when the unofficial text of Germany's warning was brought to him, at once called for the official document which had just been presented to Secretary Lansing by the German Ambassador.

A cloud of deepest anxiety settled over the White House and the State Department. The President and his advisers apparently were confronted with the greatest international problem which the European war had yet presented. It was pointed out that President probably would not decide on a course of action without laying the entire situation before the Cabinet. The Cabinet will not meet in regular session until Friday, but it was believed possible that the President might summon his lieutenants to the White House at any time. It was likewise pointed out that the President nearly a year ago promised Congressional leaders that he would not break relations with any European nation over questions relating to the war without first consulting them. It was believed certain that the President will call a joint session of Congress and lay the entire matter before them.

The decision as to what the course of the American Government shall be lies with the President, who, in the final note on the Sussex case, said:

"If it is still the purpose of the Imperial Government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines without regard to what the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the Government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue. 'Unless the Imperial Government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present method of submarine warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels, the Government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German Empire altogether. This action the Government of the United States contemplates with the greatest reluctance but feels constrained to take in behalf of humanity and the rights of neutral nations.'

Nearly two years ago the United States delivered this ultimatum on question of the use of submarines. At that time Germany agreed to restrict the use of submarines. Today's note not only removes all restrictions, but directs the new submarine campaign against neutral as well as belligerent merchant ships. It prescribes a "barred zone" about the Entente nations and forbids all ships under penalty of sinking to keep out of that zone. There was no question in official Washington tonight that the submarine plans laid down in the note are flatly in contradiction of the agreement laid down by the German Government when it accepted the Sussex note.

On Friday it was announced that President Wilson's answer to Germany's declaration of unrestricted warfare has been decided upon but is known only to three or four members of his officials family. Whether it will be solemn warning of a break in diplomatic relations if Germany's campaign is carried out or actually a severance of relations without further waiting remained undisclosed.

Bird Feed By Barrel

Must Have Been Scattered Out On Snow Around Dunnville

The heavy snow did not destroy the quail in Kentucky, according to reports received by J. Q. Ward, executive agent for the Kentucky Game and Fish Commission at Frankfort. He said the department is indebted to many farmers who helped to feed the birds. The wardens did all they could, but were unable to cover the State.

District Game Warden Sam J. Embry, here, is having some interesting aftermaths of the "feed the birds" order sent broadcast over the state by the State Game Warden. When he received the wire from Mr. Ward to phone over the district and tell the farmers to feed the birds, he did so and told them as per instructions, to send in their bills. Last week he received bills from Dunnville, Casey county, amounting to a total of about $75. Mr. Embry says that he has fired the bills back, with the statement that $75 would feed all the birds in the four counties of the district the whole winter.

Judge Harry N. Jones

Formerly Of McCreary County, Buys
Out E. C. Walton's Store

E. C. Walton, who embarked in the grocery and meat business some two months ago, buying out W. R. Willis & Son, has sold out to Judge Harry N. Jones, originally of Campbellsville, but who moved here from London, where he has lived the past year. Mr. Jones took charge Thursday, having inherited the night previous. Blackburn Huffman, who had charge of the meat department with Mr. Walton, will continue with Mr. Jones.

Mr. Jones was a resident of McCreary county when that county was created and had the distinction of being its first county judge, having been appointed by Gov. McCreery. As that county is overwhelmingly republican, it is hardly necessary to state that he was not a candidate when an election for his successor was held.

Mrs. Jones came down soon after her husband had arrived and they are living for the present in the rooms over the store. Their children, who are in school, will join them soon.

Each member of the chapter is expected to do all she can toward the success of this.

A bill to permit women to vote in all Texas primaries, which in effect would be virtually complete woman suffrage, as the primaries are equivalent to election, was introduced in the Texas State Senate recently. Sponsors of the bill expressed confidence that it would receive the necessary majority vote. A contract pleaded in a suit to recover $500 between Peyton Richie, Democratic nominee for Jailor in Knott county in 1913, and H. Cody, his Republican opponent, by which Cody resigned the nomination just before the election on promise of being Richie's deputy, and receiving half the salary, was denounced by the Court of Appeals this week as buying and selling a nomination "immoral and illegal." Richie had posted $500 on the bargain, which was loaned out by the holder. Richie recovered judgment against the maker of the note, but the judgment was reversed with direction to sustain a demurrer to his petition.

Improving Phone Plant

Crew of Men Here Putting In All
Cable Distribution System

H. T. Greathouse is at the head of a crew of about a dozen men who are in Stanford doing some improving work on the local Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph system. They are rebuilding the plant so as to provide for all cable distribution, with all open wire work dismantled except toll lines. The improvements will cost in the neighborhood of $4,000, it is understood, and will put the Stanford plant in shape for better service than ever before.

Wray Powell, who has been "trouble man" for the local phone system for some time, has been transferred to the repair crew which is now working on the local phone system. His place as trouble man here will be taken by Joseph Rose, who has hitherto been with the crew. This transfer will give Mr. Powell opportunity to gain a wider experience in the company's service. James Pickett, Tribune, son of Judge and Mrs. W. A. Tribble, of this city, is clerk of the crew here now, and Maurice Bruce, of this city, is one of its members.

DR. COX WILL BE BURIED HERE

Former Resident of Stanford Dies At Ripe Old Age At Home of Son
In Jonesboro, Tennessee

Dr. C. A. Cox, for many years a resident of Stanford, died at an early hour Friday, at the home of his son, Charles E. Cox, at Jonesboro, Tenn., at the advanced age of 79 years. A telegram to his nephew, Deputy Collector Rowan Sauley, contained the brief announcement of his demise, which did not come as a surprise, for his health had been steadily declining since the death of his wife a little more than five years ago.

Dr. Cox was born in Missouri, but came to Kentucky when a mere boy and settled in Wayne county. He was reared on a farm but studied medicine, and was known as a very skillful surgeon in his younger days. When the Civil War broke out, he joined the Union army and was made a surgeon with the rank of captain. He served throughout hostilities and after peace was established, returned to Kentucky and for many years practiced his profession. He married Miss Helen Sauley, youngest sister of the late Judge M. C. Sauley and to them were born five children, only one of whom survives to mourn the loss of his kind and indulgent father as lived, Charles E. Cox, now a successful business man of Jonesboro, Tenn.

The bitterness of the Civil war was, perhaps, more pronounced in Wayne and adjoining counties than anywhere else in Kentucky, due to the fact that those who espoused the cause of the South were vastly in the minority. Dr. Cox's brothers-in-law, Jas. M. Sauley, who was killed in 1862, and Judge Sauley, were both Confederate soldiers, and were frequently engaged in bitter fights against the regiment to which Dr. Cox belonged, but after peace was restored, they became fast friends, and no man ever had a truer, better friend than the late Judge Sauley had in Dr. Cox.

Some years ago, the deceased located in Stanford and for a long while was a successful traveling salesman, but age coming upon him, he gave up his business and lived quietly with his son until the end came to him this morning.

Dr. Cox was a devout Christian, a consistent member of the Methodist church and he yielded up the mortal life, firm in the faith of the true and living God, and in a benign belief in the everlasting joy of those who trust in their Savior.

The remains will be brought here for interment, the funeral probably being from the home of Mr. Sauley on Danville avenue.

WHISKY CAUSED THIS KILLING

Nath Lowry, about 25 years old, living near Valley View, Madison county, was placed in jail at Richmond, charged with cutting and killing Willie Smith, a negro, 19 years old. According to Lowry, he gave the negro $1.50 Saturday night with which to buy a quart of whisky, and the negro failed to return. About 9 o'clock next morning he met the negro crossing Sycamore street, in the negro section, and demanded the return of his money. The negro, he says, struck him with his fist. He hit back with his knife, striking the negro in the throat, inflicting a wound which killed him almost instantly. Lowry was held to the grand jury without bail.
